Consultant - IT Management

YOUR POSITION

As a Maturity consultant you assist CIOs, CFOs and management in IT and business with proven technical and financial skills. Our Consultants have project delivery roles and work hand in hand with our management consultants and directors.

You conduct assessments in a benchmarking team and prepare-draft conclusions. You report directly to the Managing Consultant of the respective consulting practice.

For the position of a Maturity consultant you ideally should have gained project or professional experience while studying business or computer sciences.

We expect you to take a great interest in working on projects in a wide variety of locations. We require a willingness to travel within a regionally limited territory.

If you stand out for responsible and self-reliant work, we'll support you with freedom in the advancement of your career. You learn from experienced colleagues and acquire the necessary consulting experiences while developing practical solutions for the many issues of our senior management customers.

YOUR PERSPECTIVE

- Your professional and personal development is supported on projects by senior consultants who guide you through all emerging situations.
- You will be able to take part in a variety of training sessions to complete your skills in IT and strategic consulting. You can also make new contacts to expand your professional network with experts and colleagues.
- At Maturity, you can make great strides: As a consultant, you will regularly receive new and greater responsibilities to be well prepared to master the leap to the next level.
- We encourage your creativity and your goals. You will be given greater responsibility for consulting topics and/or modules after proving yourself.
- A mentor tracks your progress, has regular reviews with you and regularly seeks feedback from your colleagues. Your mentor directs, inspires and coaches you on your way to the next career stage and associated personal development.
- Remuneration for the position is very attractive. We offer a performance-based salary with variable targets.

Consultant - IT Management

THE ASSIGNMENT

The task of our Consultants is to support our customers as part of the Maturity team. An experienced senior consultant works as a trusted advisor for you. You'll guide IT organizations, departments and service providers in implementing effective and proven practices in the fields of IT benchmarking, IT strategy and IT controlling with regard to the corporate strategy. As a consultant you are responsible for defined tasks within our projects. You support your project management in building and developing a complete solution concept.

THE CHALLENGES

- Support for projects in the back office and for the initiation and conduct of workshops at customer sites;
- Development and application of management consulting methods for strategic projects;
- Participation in project management and the project office;
- In-depth treatment of questions and answers to prepare concise decisions;
- Active support of sales team and providing presentations;
- Participate in trade press and Maturity publications;
- Constant training on the latest IT technologies and trends to optimize our dynamic analysis models and tools for the support of our customers.

YOUR PROFILE

- You graduated in computer science or business administration with a MBA, MSc or equivalent degree, preferably with professional experience working in a customer environment;
- You know the established management methods and analysis tools and can apply them;
- Your knowledge of economics enables you to analyse and evaluate figures and information;
- You have a self-confident personality with excellent analytical skills, creativity, and a practice-oriented implementation approach;
- Your English language skills are very good and you ideally have experience in living or working abroad;
- You are willing to travel and open-minded regarding new project situations and challenges.
